transformation of the Libeň Docks site. Two five-floor and one six-floor buildings offer a total of 65 residential units meeting high standards – as well as garage parking in an underground lot. The group of houses is organized around a central service core and connected by a short junction to the external service road. The building's load-bearing construction uses reinforced concrete walls, which cross over into a brick system starting at the 3rd story. The horizontal load-bearing construction has been created on all floors by using a two-way reinforced concrete slab set onto walls and, in places, columns. The buildings are supported on founda...
