“ The reconstruction of a listed building which will serve as a Museum of the Old Kladruby Horse. ”

The project featured a complete reconstruction of a listed building in serious disrepair. The renovation process placed special emphasis on preserving the original structure. The building was protected against moisture, i.e. all walls were undercut and waterproofing material was inserted, walls were also cleaned of salt – in the interiors up to the ceiling of the first floor. The roof and the timber roof truss were removed and replaced with exact copies of original ruined elements – for example decorative rafter endings, folded edges of ceiling joists or an engraved gable. The roof was covered by wood shingles with carefully worked out details – roof valleys, dormer windows. Wooden windows and doors were manufactured based on photographs of the period. Ceramic floor tiling imitati...
